Products manufactured in the US: Cufflinks, Formal Dress Sets, Tie Bar/Clips, Key Rings, Money Clips, Charms.

Company statement: A 3rd generation antique dealer, I designed the very first decorative tampon case, Just-In-Case(R), based on a Victorian cigar case. I chose Kirk/Stieff, an historically well-known and nearby American firm as my manufacturer. Their history goes back over 100 years. That venture put me in touch with a young local silversmith with whom I had immediate rapport. Specializing in men's antique/vintage cufflinks, as The Antique Jewel Box, I was asked by Neiman-Marcus buyer to come up with a cigar theme cufflink. That spawned a line of figural cufflinks, and the young silversmith became my manufacturing jeweler. My ideas were translated by my son, Stephen, into well-defined pencil sketches and from there into wax models and finally into the cufflinks themselves. The Caroline Collection was born here, and we do all the work locally. Attention to detail, pride in workmanship, customer service...all reasons we are proud to say Made in the USA for many, many years.

From our SoHo laboratory where concepts are created, to finished products, we truly are a brand that is Made in NYC.

Other practical reasons for manufacturing in NYC include a much faster turn around on bulk production and better availability for smaller reorders and restocking. We cut costs of shipping, which can then be added to special finishes and additional detail giving greater value to our product than competitors. We feel a strong connection to the NYC community. Our company has been based in NY since its conception a decade ago employing hundreds, and gathering a client base of thousands. Our localized production stimulates the local economy, thus creating synergy between all parts of our brand from conceptualization to manufacturing to the end-user.

Company statement: Why we manufacture here in The USA? Number one reason is: CONTROL

Control of design execution, control of details, control of quality, control of delivery dates (shorter lead times), control on the quantity of units to be made (we only make what we sell). I was inspired to manufacture here in the USA, after my first visit to a Starbucks coffee shop almost 20 years ago. The aroma, the ambiance and people waiting in line to get a fresh brewed quality cup of coffee, and to see the look of satisfaction on their faces told me that: people do want a quality product and they're willing to pay more for it. We try to create a similar experience with our products. When a store receives their order and they open the box, it's like (receiving) a fresh brewed cup of good coffee or like fresh baked bread. The smell of leather is there, the coats were made the way they wanted them and when they wanted them.

Also, by having our manufacturing facilities near, we can keep better control of our production. We travel the world to research and find inspiration from authentic work wear. We then reinterpret them in premium fabrics and updated silhouettes to better fit an urban lifestyle, while still paying homage to the lineage of the original garment. The result is a design and product with which people feel a connection, and brings a meaning that they feel is lacking in fashion today. We have been able to succeed because our customers appreciate purchasing an Operations garment with a purpose.

Location and info on US manufacturing facilities: Oxford Clothes, Chicago, IL
Products manufactured in the US: Tailored Suits, Sportcoats, Trousers, Overcoats and Formalwear, Dress Shirts and Sport Shorts, Neckwear
Company statement : Oxford Clothes was established in 1916 by Louis and Jacob Weinberg in Chicago. Our mission has been to produce the world's finest hand made tailored clothing. Early innovative features such as an interior bellows pocket construction, one piece waistband/pocketing constructions obtained U.S. Patents for our unique design. Craftsmanship has been improved by continuing to develop finer components, improving upon tailoring techniques, developing new cloth qualities and modern silhouettes. Marry these improvements with the desire to provide the highest level of customer service and partnership with our retailers and you'll find a formula for success. The brand is now being distributed in Japan, Australia and Greece with many more international retailers coming on board. Our relevancy and success can be summarized by a quote taken from a letter that Louis "LA" Weinberg wrote in the early 1930's; "Oxford Clothes since its birth has chosen to adhere to a single standard of quality rather than "run with the pack" who, frightened momentarily and blinded by this fear, often run over a precipice (price cutting and lowering of quality) before they can regain their equilibrium and good reason."

Phone: 212-642-9800
e-mail: liza@rayshowroom.com
Location and info on US manufacturing facilities: Vista, California
Products manufactured in the US: Screen printed t-shirts Company statement: Public Domain Clothing is held privately by 12-year veterans in the t-shirt business, but – more importantly – it belongs to a burgeoning constituency of fans and bloggers worldwide. Launched at the February 2007 United Trade Show in Las Vegas, Public Domain Clothing was born out of the need for ART and COMMERCE to peacefully coexist. Longtime manufacturers of the "couture tee" for the boutique marketplace, the creators of Public Domain invoked this controversial title as a comment on the apparel industry as a whole: The paranoia, the imitations, the circular nature of trends, etc. In spite of the play on words, all of the works distributed by Public Domain Clothing are original, protected by standard copyright laws, and built from scratch by Public Domain's very own art team. Printed with the same care and perfectionism that has drawn so many underground brands to the Public Domain factory, the line has infiltrated closets all over the nation, and the world. Just as graffiti, advertising, and the media display themselves in the public eye, fashion and apparel can be the ultimate in free expression. While the t-shirts themselves are soft and huggable, Public Domain graphics are a visual shout in the streets. If the public domain belongs to the people, then Public Domain Clothing belongs in everyone's closet.
